Dear Sir/Madam,

Of late queries have been received from various RCs regarding revised pro-rata fee to be charged for 'repeat/missed practicals' in Computer Programmes due to shortfall of attendance by less than 75% in practical sessions. In this connection, your attention is invited to our letter cited above wherein it has been informed that "..... pro-rata fee is to be calculated on the basis of the total fee for the semester divided by the number of courses in that specific semester.....".

2. Alternatively, RDs can also utilize the pro-rata fee per course fixed for re-admission in Computer Programmes, printed copies of which have been recently circulated vide our letter No.IG/SRE-Ex.III/Re-admss/2006/1052 dated 31.03.2006.

Yours faithfully,

(Srikant Mohapatra)

Sub: Repeat/missed practical session for Computer Programmes

Dear Sir/Madam,

Enquiries have been received from some Regional Directors about conduct of practical sessions for those students who may have either missed the practical sessions in respective semesters or whose attendance in practical sessions is less than 75% due to which they are not permitted to appear in the term-end practical examinations. Such students may be allowed to do practical sessions by paying 50% pro-rata fee of the specific course. Pro-rata fee is to be calculated on the basis of the total fee for the semester divided by the number of courses in that specific semester. However, they may be permitted to attend the repeat/missed practicals when the practical sessions of that specific course are conducted during the next semester/session only. Such students may attend practical sessions in the aforesaid semester and need not wait till the completion of all semesters.

Thanking you,

Yours faithfully,

(P.K. Mehta)
